

West Wealth of Hindostan.
In India there is more wealth than in any country in the world. Gold, silver, jewels and spices—these are the things that have been produced and found in this land. One of the Indian princes was worth valued at $15,000,000.

The Time Now.
Our time, it seems, is not ripe for the realization of the great prosperity promising universal peace. But we hope on in our faith and our love of the human race.—Jeremiah Voice.

All except bad ones!

There are hundreds of cough medicines which relieve coughs, all coughs, except bad ones! The medicine which has been curing the worst of bad coughs for 60 years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Here is evidence:

"My wife was troubled with a deep-seated cough on her lungs for three years. One day I thought of how Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured the life of my sister after the doctors had all given her up to die. So I purchased two bottles, and it cured my wife completely. It took only one bottle to cure my sister. So you see that three bottles (one dollar each) saved two lives. We all send you our heartfelt thanks for what you have done for us."—H. H. BROWN, Mason, Cal., Jan. 15, 1899.

Now, for the first time you can get a trial bottle of Cherry Pectoral for 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

LOVED OCEAN'S ROAR.

YOUTHFUL BRIDE COULD NOT LEAVE IT.

Not Even a Handsome Husband Could Love Her from the Mysterious Wiles of Old Neptune.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It is seldom that love of the sea will wreck a happy home, and a happy young man at that; but for once the skill and power of that mighty little god Dan Cupid has been so much at fault by the wiles of seductive Father Neptune. Twenty years ago pretty and petite Nellie Kyle was born at Meadow Lake, Minn., about two miles from the quiet old town of Milford. She was a water nymph almost from her birth. Not a city block from the picturesque, homelike little cottage which sheltered her until she developed into a ripe, fascinating little elf of womanhood abided and dwelt the great Atlantic ocean, swept by the autumnal storm, wistful gales, and fanned into peaceful quiet by the soft summer breezes that old Nell in the dog days tempered with his piercing rays. The big domed steamers plowed their way within easy view of her homestead windows, where she dreamed away her happy childhood hours, and the unceasing beating and sullen roar of the surf ceased sweet music that lulled her to sleep. From a very early age she learned how to swim, and all summer long, and even until late in the fall she might be found day after day disappearing herself in the arms of Father Neptune. As she grew older her skill as a bold and daring swimmer became remarkable, and time and again she would swim several miles from the shore, mocking the tired and weakened swimmers who would not dare to venture out with her. Her townspeople looked at her with awe, and some of the old gossips professed that she must have a-year, the liking grew and grew until it ripened into love. They were married Oct. 4, barely a month past. When Baptiste reached Meadow Lake he found that he was wanted to go to bathing with her, but the chill winds of autumn, which obliged him to wear a heavy fall overcoat, deterred him, although she went down to her bathing suit for her morning's plunge just as though the balmy summer breezes were circling around her voluptuous form. She had her bath; then they were married. The moment the train pulled out pernatorial powers; but to her young playmates she was like a watching Lorelei that ever lured the unconscious swimmers on to danger. Gradually her love for the sea became so strong that long before the birds of the town were carpeted with the rich velvety green grass that goes to make up so much of the beauty of a New England town she would be found dallying with the waves of the ocean, and late in the fall, when the flocks of the trees stretched forth their gaunt, lifeless arms and branches, she could still be seen happily playing in the surf.

But not alone in the water was she hearing the happy couple away from the ceremony to the bridegroom's western home the loving bride grew restless, and after the last whiff of the salt, briny air of the sea was obtained in Jersey City a nameless longing filled her breast. Every mile the bridegroom's home seemed to her an unbecomingly placed between her and the beloved ocean seemed to separate her just that much distance from her husband, until by the time they reached St. Louis she was coldly repellant. She mourned for the wash of the surf, and not even the luxurious surroundings of the elegantly furnished apartment at a fashionable boarding house in St. Louis, where her husband took her on the day of their arrival, Oct. 8, could make her forget for an instant her childhood's happy home, with the curling, rippling waves, whose faint murmuring to her excited imagination seemed to be calling her back to the home of her birth.

She grew morbid, and habited in her sleep of the foamy white caps, and while she said nothing about the ocean to her husband, he could plainly tell that she was homesick for the salt sea breeze, the sound of the steamers and a night of the trim sailboats ditting along the restless waters of the Sound and coast. She was a young girl, had never been away from home, and finally in desperation insisted on leaving her new home and going back to Meadow Lake.

She frankly told her husband she no longer loved him and wanted to leave him; that it was all a mistake. In desperation the young Benedict fled his residence to his father's home, where he thought the quieter and more homelike surroundings might still the restless spirit of his salt-water wife. It was no use, however. The girl broke insisted on returning to New England, and insisted that they be divorced; so, on Oct. 16, the thoroughly disgusted, surprised and disappointed husband filed a petition for divorce as below, and on the 18th the young wife returned to her folks in Connecticut.

an adept. At the hotel dance her graceful, languorous glide in the waltz was much sought after, and happy was the man who could claim her for a partner. To all, however, she remained unresponsive, in the meantime, however, when she was twelve years old, and about eight years ago, George Baptiste, junior partner of the Baptiste Tent and Awning company, of St. Louis, then about twenty years of age, came to Meadow Lake for the summer. He was a powerful, muscular and athletic young fellow, with fine physique and handsome face and bearing. Of course Baptiste had to go in bathing, and of course he met pretty Nellie Kyle. Nothing that she could pro-husband cannot procure a divorce unless the wife desires him for a year, because the statutory grounds for divorce in Missouri, independent of those which relate to the physical capacity of the parties, do not permit it.

Doctors are interested in the case because, according to their theory, it is a case of monomania or homicidomania which they claim will be immediately cured upon the young wife reaching her home. Then it will be possible for her, according to their theory, to return with her husband to her own home and live in happiness. If she were living in the days of Greek mythology the learned men of that time would say Neptune was claiming his bride. As the case stands it is to be hoped that the charming young lady will return to her handsome husband and round out a career of social and glittering success. As to the outcome of this strange freak of a wife's fancy no man knows. Time alone can show.

A CITY OF MONKEYS.

One of the strangest sights in the world is a city of monkeys.

Mrs. Clara E. Kinsman describes graphically a visit to the ancient city of Anur, in India, and which is inhabited only by a few primates and thousands of monkeys. The hill on which the city stands is surrounded by other high hills, crowned with towers and ramparts and covered with trees. The great, well-fortified stands out prominently in the center of the hill, surrounded by a court—this is the only place which is inhabited. This is a well-populated and lively quarter, a tribe of langurs or bonobos, monkeys have taken possession, and dwell here in comfort and freedom. The Hindus religiously refrain from hunting or killing any animal, and the monkeys, having no fear, are monarchs of the hill. They are everywhere, and they are everywhere. The monkeys, in fact, are the monarchs of the hill, and they are everywhere. The monkeys, in fact, are the monarchs of the hill, and they are everywhere.

FOURTEEN TIMES WEDDED.
Queer matrimonial records have been discovered in Indiana. One of the most remarkable of these is the fourteenth marriage of Aunt Polly Owens of White River township, Hamilton county, says the Atlanta Constitution. She probably holds the Mississippi valley record for marriage. She is only 32 years of age and looks as though she might outlive a dozen other husbands. Aunt Polly was married the first time when she was 14 years old, and was left a widow two years later. Since then she has averaged a new husband every two years. She has produced eight or nine divorces. The rest of her husbands have died. She has only six children as the result of her multi-marriage career, but these six have as many different names. Edward Thompson, residing at 1218 North-west street, Indianapolis, has not only one of the best matrimonial records in Indiana, but he lays claim to the largest family in the state. His family numbers forty-nine children, the result of six marriages. Twenty-nine of these are step-children, but they are all claimed by him as his family. A combined marriage and family record which probably stands without a parallel in the Mississippi valley is that of John Grigg and Deyla Clark of Anderson. He is 67 and she is ten years his junior. It is his sixth and her fifth matrimonial venture. Both have large families. There are fifteen different family names. New matrimonial age lists have been recorded in the last month. Pearl Caine, age 31, married Louis Caine at Hadley station, Hendricks county, Centred White, age 26, and Margaret J. Rhoads of Morris, Ill., age 36, eloped to Valparaiso recently and were married.
